Presenting

the tree that is life at Beaver College, Jenkintown, Pennsylvania, as represented on the pages of the 1946 Beaver Log . . .

BENTON SPRUANCE • ADVISOR ● BETSEY SMITH • EDITOR ● ARABELLE GARIS • BUSINESS MANAGER ● JANICE MACDONALD • LITERARY EDITOR

In the hot noon, in an old and savage garden,
The peach-tree grows. Its ugly cruel roots
Rend and rifle the silent earth for moisture.
Above, in the blue, hang warm and golden fruits.
Look, how the cancerous roots crack mould and stone!
Earth, if she had a voice, would wail her pain.
Is she the victim? Or is the tree the victim? . . .
Delicate blossoms opened in the rain,
Black bees flew among them in the sunlight,
And sacked them ruthlessly; and now a bird
Hangs, sharp-eyed, in the leaves, and pecks at the fruit;
And the peach-tree dreams, and does not say a word
"You will think it strange," says Senlin, "but this tree
Utters profound things in this garden,
And in its silence speaks to me.
I have sensations, when I stand beneath it,
As if its leaves looked at me, and could see:
And these thin leaves, even in windless air,
Seem to be whispering me a choral music
Insubstantial but debonair.
'Regard,' they seem to say,
'Our idiot root, which going its brutal way
Has cracked your garden wall!
Ugly, is it not?
A desecration of this place . . .
And yet, without it, could we exist at all?'

Thus, rustling with importance, they seem to me
To make their apology;
And while they apologize
Ask me a wary question with their eyes.
Yes, it is true their origin is low—
Brutish and dull and cruel . . . and it is true
Their roots have cracked the wall. But do we know
The leaves less cruel—the root less beautiful?
Sometimes it seems as if there grew
In the dull garden of my mind
A tree like this, which, singing with delicate leaves,
Yet cracks the walls with cruel roots and blind.
Sometimes, indeed, it appears to me
That I myself am such a tree . . ."
. . . And as we hear from Senlin these strange words
So, slowly, in the sunlight, he becomes this tree:
And among the pleasant leaves hang sharp-eyed birds
While cruel roots dig downward secretly.

DEDICATION

. . . For the leaf came,

Alone and shining in the empty room:

After a while the twig shot downward from it;

And from the twig a bough; and then the trunk,

Massive and coarse; and last the one black root.

The black root cracked the walls. Boughs burst the window:

The great tree took possession.

. . . Trees of trees!

Remember (when time comes) how chaos died

To shape the shining leaf. Then turn, have courage

Wrap arms and roots together, be convulsed

With grief, and bring back chaos out of shape

I will be watching then as I watch now.

I will praise darkness now, but then the leaf.

DR. RAYMOND M. KISTLER

How often during our freshman year we passed that sign in the corridor and never dared to enter. "President", the sign read, and to us seemed a sign for retreat.

During the past four years we have come to know President Kistler and no longer have we that "scared" feeling. He has been our friend and councilor throughout our four years here. Dr. Kistler's freshman Bible classes, chapel services, and friendly visits have made him a significant part of Beaver life.

FACULTY

OF BEAVER COLLEGE

Miss Helen Crawford

We have gradually come to believe that a man who knows his Bible is a better man with whom to live. Each Beaver student who graduates has with her a knowledge of the oldest story of mankind, and it is believed that with this knowledge, she is better able to recognize, in this era of science, that there is still to be created a bomb that can destroy the power of God.

BIBLE

BIOLOGY

Biology, not only an interesting but useful field, is being explored in the labs of Murphy Hall by future doctors and research workers. Dissecting animals, studying embryos, and squinting through microscopes occupy many happy hours for the scientifically minded students. The Science Department sponsored a Science Open House in the spring and revealed all its rare specimens and mysterious formulas to the public.

Never before have people been so aware of the power and the extent of science as we are today while we stand upon the threshold of the atomic age. The great achievements reached by scientists of today will be improved and surpassed by those people who are studying chemistry and mathematics in our colleges today.

CHEMISTRY AND MATHEMATICS

COMMERCE

Our commerce students are the girls who are going to make the great and small business organizations tick in a world where the war will be gradually working into the stages of memory. With their knowledge of shorthand, typing, accounting, business law, and the great why's and how's of a business-minded universe, they will be affecting a world of business enterprise where even the smallest executive is going to be a very important person.

Education majors are not content with having finished with the great ordeal of "growing up". They are going through it all over again, in order to help other children, from the impressive age of three to the more advanced age of 18, grow up. They are learning how to make fifth grade geography classes less boring and Shakespeare appeal to seniors in high school.

EDUCATION

ENGLISH

English majors are imbued with the faint hope that they might possibly possess a style of writing all their own and the undeniable fact that they are qualified to criticize the style of all the great masters in literature. If they are able to emerge from the comprehensive alive or even half alive, they are considered worthy disciples of all the old boys from Chaucer to Wolfe; and, oh, yes!—of the distinguished professors of their own beloved English Department.

A keener sense of one's value of art, an expression of individuality and talent—these are the pillars of Brookside, the art studio. Whether a student is sketching, painting, measuring an angle of a floor-plan, or perhaps just listening to a lecture on composition, we find the Beaver artists enthusiastic in their work. Talent is not groping—it is molded technique which expresses one's ideals.

FINE ARTS

HISTORY

Though history triumphs over time, the majors in this department have triumphed over history. After plowing through all ages of past humanity both in class and in long, weary hours of outside readings, they have emerged as slightly worn but well-equipped students and citizens, prepared to meet, analyze, improve, and participate in the greatest history of all times—the history of the present.

"Quick, what's the recipe for chocolate mousse?" "Is Royal Baking Powder used with or without baking soda?" "How do you keep white sauce at the right consistency?" From the time we entered the Home Economics Laboratory, not knowing the difference between calcification and carotenes, we have steadily (maybe a little wearily at times) but surely been climbing the nutritional ladder to better daily living for health.

HOME ECONOMICS

LANGUAGES

Although at first we dislike the trouble of learning a new language when we feel that we could read its literature in translation, we soon discover that acquiring a knowledge of French, German, or Spanish as well as Greek or Latin is as much an art as studying painting, or music, or literature. Few students will learn to speak any of these like a native, but they will have gained some familiarity with that "other soul" that speaks another country's tongue.

We believe that the body as well as the mind needs to be developed in order for one to become a well-balanced individual. An enthusiasm for sports creates a wholesome personality together with an attitude of fair play and an aptitude for cooperation. Beaver encourages this growth through Varsity and Intramural activities.

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

MUSIC

Music, the most emotionally provocative of the arts, soothes a wartime world and inspires a peaceful one. People will always cry out for the great music that has been and is being composed to lift them from the reality of life into the realm of dreams and fantasy. Beaver answers that call with students who have made use of their talents by practice and study in order to give others the appreciation and enjoyment they seek.

The social sciences are essential, practical, and modern studies. Consisting of economics, sociology, and psychology, the social science departments equip their students to face the inevitable pursuit of "living and letting others live". In this rapidly changing world there will be a growing realization of the persistent usefulness and an ever-increasing demand for this kind of understanding.

SOCIAL SCIENCES

PHILOSOPHY

"We are not idle when we are absorbed in thought. There is a visible labor and there is an invisible labor." Well, to those of us who sit in Dr. Dapp's stimulating lectures, philosophy is the most invisible labor of which we know. With class meetings devoted to informal discussions of life, the physical world, reality, Deity, immortality, and similar topics—to say nothing of syllogisms regarding these, anyone of us is apt to or even qualified to come out of a classroom feeling like a little weary Plato.

Mr. Charles F. Dapp

Mrs. Marjorie Shafer
Miss Mary E. Wheatley

The library is kept in order by Miss Wheatley and her assistant, Mrs. Shafer, so that students may study and do research amid its many books. Miss Wheatley is new at Beaver this year although Mrs. Shafer helped us patiently through last year as well.

Mr. Lorus Milne

Trying to keep track of approximately four hundred girls and all the other countless duties and details which are included, cause a housemother's position to be a difficult one. However, the manner in which they care for us and guide us during our four years is indeed a splendid one.

DIETITIANS

Miss Eleanor Felter and Miss Marion A. Hennessy

Without the able management of Miss Hennessy and her assistant, Miss Felter, college would not be much fun—for who does not love to eat? Always happy to plan special dinners and arrange for an extra event, the dietitians are indispensible to our life at Beaver.

INFIRMARY

Rarely does a student graduate from college without spending at least one day in the infirmary under the able care of both nurses and Dr. Burns. It is far from an unpopular place, for when winter begins and Philadelphia weather has finally gotten the best of you, Beaver's Infirmary has a long waiting line.

The secretaries probably know more about us than we know ourselves. They know how many cuts we have taken, whether or not we are to receive a warning, and just what the evaluation of that C is in English. Either in answering our many questions or securing appointments for us, they continually and cheerfully aid and direct us.

THE SENIOR CLASS OF 1946

We entered college during the Second World War. We were present on a college campus when circumstances and events were dark and serious all over the globe. We studied, read, and continued a superficially normal life at college with an ear and an eye for that which was happening in Europe and in the Far East.

Now graduating into a world that is technically at peace, we are prepared by our four years of college to give of ourselves in order to construct a better world and preserve a peace that—if we care at all—must be maintained.

The snap of a dark root underground—
Can you, indeed, embody your souls as sound?

Conrad Aiken

. . . The many trees, on the unseen waves of the air,
Rise slowly, turn, or slowly come to pause.
The leaves are laced together and parted again,
The small bell tinkles, the deep bell tolls,
A flurry of rain on the leaves makes a sound of applause.

THE POINT COMMITTEE

The function of the Point Committee has been to see that students did not over-indulge in extra-curricular activities, that is to say carry too many points. This would help eliminate the possibility of girls damaging their scholastic standing by spending too much time on outside activities. By limiting the number of points a student may carry, there is chance for more capable girls to hold offices and enter into extra curricular activities.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT

"Whether these forms be in all cases the most rational or not is really not of so great importance. It is much more material that there should be a rule to go by than what the rule is; that there may be a uniformity of proceeding in business, not subject to the caprice of the chairman or captiousness of the members. It is very material that order, decency, and regularity be preserved in a dignified public body."

This was the thought that opened the first Student Government meeting in October, 1945. It is this idea that served as a guide and a goal in the year's proceedings.

Student Government can be effective only when a high standard of honor and a strong spirit of unity are attained, a cooperation between different organizations is secured, and when responsibility, self-control, and loyalty are encouraged; and this is its manifold purpose.

HONOR COUNCIL

The aim of the Honor System at Beaver College is to develop character, and the basis of the council's work is to build and encourage honor rather than to punish acts of dishonor. The entire responsibility for the success of the Honor System rests with the student body. Every student reflects by her actions whether or not she is worthy of being a member of such an organization.

Standing: M. Ingling, B. Ellis, L. Mount. Sitting: A. Thayer, J. Parmlee, D. Moffett — President; M. Davis, S. Blodgett.

Back row: T. Monaghan, C. Halprin, B. Jacobs, D. Germain. Front row: L. Yost, M. Harris—President; E. Steele.

Dormitory Council was established as a subsidiary organization of the Student Council to be responsible exclusively for dormitory life. It meets weekly to review cases of those who have been reported for violation of dormitory rules. The council enforces orderliness of the dormitories and is responsible for the general conduct of the students on campus.

DORMITORY COUNCIL

NOMINATING COUNCIL

It is the purpose of the Nominating Council to nominate capable candidates for the offices that are filled by popular election. Each potential candidate is judged impartially by the council in regard to character, integrity, leadership, and scholastic standing.

Beaver's Day Students come from near and not-so-near places to attend the college. They trudge through the rain in April, arriving at 8:25 classes on—well, almost on time. They are represented in the student body by a special council, the Day Students' Council, which informs them of all important matters.

In its second official year as a college unit, Beaver's Red Cross organization is concentrating on a world at peace and is engaged in traditional humanitarian work. Its main activities include the annual War Fund Campaign, presenting Christmas gifts to wounded veterans, lecturing to Junior Red Cross groups, entertaining service men at veteran hospitals, and sponsoring First Aid and Life Saving courses on campus.

Our hands are hot and raw with the stones we have laid,
We have built a tower of stone high into the sky.
We have built a city of towers.
Our hands are light, they are singing with emptiness.
Our souls are light. They have shaken a burden of hours . . .
What did we build it for? Was it all a dream? . . .
Ghostly above us in the lamplight the towers gleam . . .
And after a while they will fall to dust and rain;
Or else we will tear them down with impatient hands;
And hew rock out of the earth, and build them again.

FORUM

The Forum of Arts and Sciences, with its divisions of Literature and Drama, Music, Fine Arts, World Affairs, Science, and Vocational Interests, acts as a governing body over all cultural activity on campus. It sponsors student participation in the Glee Club, Beaver News, Beaver Review, Theater Play Shop, Spanish Fiesta, and Inter-Class Play Contest, as well as arranging a balanced program of outside artists through its speakers fund.

This year Forum was introduced to the class of '49 by House Talent Night, held during Freshman Week. On that evening some of our more talented upper-classmen performed, and helped to uncover similar skills lying dormant under the new greenie caps.

Our first professional speaker was Miss Anna May Wong, whose scintillating lecture, "Leaves from a Chinese Fan", was very appreciatively received. In October, Mr. Spruance's art lecture broke all attendance records, and raised a demand for more of the same kind.

Then followed weeks of rehearsing, scene-painting, and technical headaches involved in the production of "Stage Door" by the Theater Play Shop.

November found the Fine Arts division covered from head to toe with gray paint, redecorating the interior of Brookside Hall in preparation for the mightily successful all-faculty art exhibit, while the Crafts Club members worked feverishly to finish their beautiful leather-work in time for Christmas.

In December, Vincent Sheean, the world-famous foreign affairs analyst, thrilled us with his brilliant and timely lecture on "Problems of the War and the Peace".

The Forum calendar for second semester was packed to the brim with items such as the Trapp family concert, Dr. Curry's recital, Inter-Class play contest, Shakespeare's birthday celebration, and the Spanish Fiesta. The wonderful assistance of Miss Belle Matheson and Mr. Thomas Barlow, general Forum advisors, added to the aid of the staff of officers and the student and faculty advisors of each division, directed Forum through to a successful fulfillment of its aims for the season '45-'46.

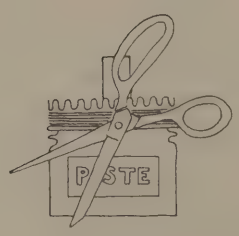
THE STAFF OF THE 1946



This year, which marks the end of a destructive era and the start of a constructive age, we of the 1946 Log staff have attempted to present a book in keeping with the philosophy of the times. We have worked all year to bring our thoughts and ideas—for this book is a part of us—together so that they will be digested and, we hope, enjoyed by others.

The formal and candid photographs are an integral part of any yearbook and an invaluable source of amusement and of memorable times, and, as such, need no explanation. The theme, as you have seen, is symbolic and rather abstract.

As a point of departure we have taken the tree—symbol of nature's development—to represent our own growth and development at Beaver College. As growth begins, we come from our high schools and prep schools to embark upon a new and different sort of life. As the tree grows, spreading its roots and branches, we develop our spiritual, mental, and physical egos by entering all phases of college life—in the classroom, in various organizations and activities and in the ever so important informal discussions in the dormitories. At graduation time we are ready to make an impression upon the world—however huge or small—it is to be our very own.

This is the 1946 Log—our book. We shall hold it and the things it stands for—four memorable years of our youth—close in our hearts in the days when college will be more a memory than a reality.

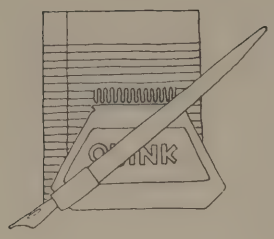
THE BEAVER NEWS

GOES TO PRESS

Perhaps the most vital means of student expression here at Beaver is the News. Through the Beaver News we have not only kept you posted on the latest school activities from Forum events to dates and dances, but we have made room for anybody who wanted to express her opinion—and there are not many of you who haven't seen your name in the News at one time or another.

This year in particular we have tried to bring to your attention some of the more serious aspects of world events, as well as school events, in recognition of the unprecedented problems of our generation.



The deep satisfaction of seeing one's work, created in a moment's inspiration, printed and illustrated upon the pages of a magazine is known and felt by those who have contributed to the Beaver Review. It is known also to the editors, for it is with sincere enjoyment that we discover new talent and interest in writing on campus. We hope that the readers may share with us this literary fellowship: for we publish short stories, poems, and articles which deserve credit as creative expression.

"The Arts" was chosen as the theme for the 1945-6 Review. The issues exalted singly—literature, art, and music, by means of an impressionistic illustration and an appropriate quotation. The magazine was enhanced by such frontispieces.

Whose silence revives
valley after valley to peace
as poems still conserve
the language of old ecstasies.

ATHLETIC ASSOCIATION

The purpose of athletics here at Beaver is mainly to develop ability, cooperation, and sportsmanship in the personality of every student.

The purpose of the Athletic Association is to instill in the minds of our students the desire to improve their ability in athletics, the need for better character, cooperation, and sportsmanship. How does this pertain to sports?

In a game, whether there be many participants or only two, one has the desire to do well. This desire acts as a stimulant in making the players consciously or unconsciously strive to better their skills or athletic ability. Learning recreational games in college will not only develop motor skills, but will also have a definite carry-over value for leisure time activities after graduation.

Because Beaver believes so firmly in the importance of athletics, it has developed an extensive varsity and intramural program open to all girls who are interested in sports. The Athletic Association sponsors a program of activities that extends through the entire year covering every conceivable popular sport.

The Rifle Department is again in full swing after a slight curtailment in activities during the war years. Great enthusiasm has been shown by all classes in both Intramural and Varsity matches.

GOLF TEAM

For the past three years Beaver's golf team has had an undefeated record. With all the '45 squad returning to the team: Nancy Crosson, Nancy McIntosh, Dottie and Marcia Passon, and Dot Germain, Captain, together with many promising freshmen, we hope to continue in our previous manner.

M. Passon, N. McIntosh, D. Germain, N. Crosson, D. Passon.

SWIMMING TEAM

This year a new and enthusiastic interest was shown in swimming. The varsity team swam in three meets away. Intramural swimming, senior life saving, as well as just a dip for the sheer fun of it have made it plain to all that swimming will be one of Beaver's outstanding sports next year.

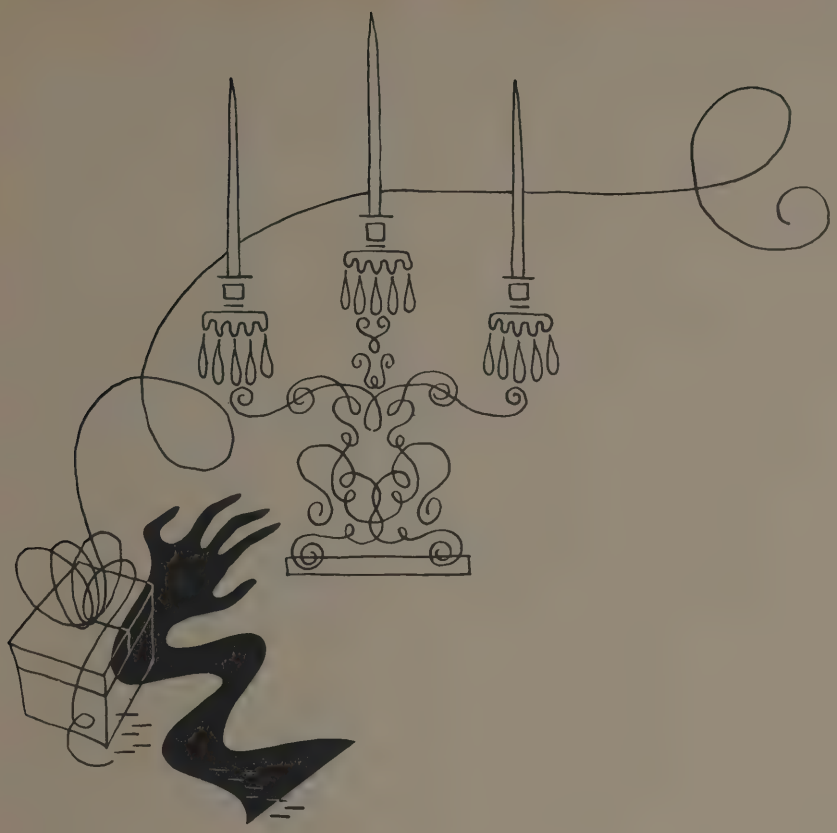
Being the lesser organization in the Athletic Association did not stop the Managerial Board from sponsoring this year a very full and interesting intramural program along with a larger varsity schedule.



SOCIAL EVENTS

It was not innocence, it was not scorn
And yet it had these names and many more.
It was a champion blowing on a horn,
It was the running of a golden boar.
It was a stallion trampling the skies
To rags of thunder with his glittering shoes,
It was a childish god with lazy eyes,
It was an indolent and reckless Muse.

More than all this, it was a spirit apart,
Purely of fire and air and the mind.
No fear could eat the temper from its heart
Nor any fleshly bandage make it blind.
It was a broken lightning in the blast.
It was the first of youth, and it will pass.

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

The social side of life at Beaver gives us a chance to sink back from the cold reality of that exam in Chemistry or Economics, and give our weary brains a rest. Thanks to our Social Committee, composed of girls from each dorm and class, this pleasant diversion is made possible. Sponsoring this committee is the Student Government Organization.

From rags to silks and satins or from the ridiculous to the sublime appropriately describes our transformation for the teas given Freshman Week with a "get acquainted" theme for both Frosh and upperclassmen. In addition to the Freshman Week teas, special teas were provided in Green Parlors with appropriate decor, for days such as St. Valentine's and St. Patrick's day. As you grab your roommate's hand and dash from your last class in the afternoon for a cup of tea to hold off that rumbling sensation in your stomach until dinner-time, you give a solemn thanks to the Social Committee. Also during exam week as you stumbled feebly from that dreadful Psychology exam you found a nice cup of hot chocolate and a few cookies just the right answer to revive your lifeless form.

Aside from the culinary side of the social events, such things as Fun Night in the Gymnasium, Christmas dorm parties, and many other events were sponsored by the Social Committee.

We all give a hearty thanks to this committee for providing us with a few laughs and a spot of tea occasionally to brighten up our campus life.

JUNIOR PROM

The class of 47 presented the first Junior Prom week-end since the war on March 8 and 9. With much enthusiasm the Juniors scouted around for a name band and Vincent Lopez was their choice. The castle was the setting of the most important social event of the year. From the balcony one could observe the soft lights and beautiful array of colored gowns sprinkled amid the long awaited tails.

The week-end was concluded by an informal dance in Murphy Gym, ending a wonderful week-end to be long remembered as the first post-war Junior Prom at Beaver.

SONG CONTEST

Do not make echoes of forgotten time,
Do not strike music from old broken keys,
Do not make ghosts
With faded tinklings on the yellowed board;
But play us a tune on an unbroken spinet,
Play lively music
When the instrument was new.

May Day

The annual May Day celebration was held on Saturday, May 24th, at Grey Towers. Laurel Chain and Honor Court preceded by the May Queen and her four attendants opened the exercises with the processional to the dais, after which the crowning of the queen took place. A program of Swedish dancing and a pageant entitled "The Ugly Duckling" were then presented to entertain the royal court.

The general theme of May Day was based on the customs and life of the Swedish who settled America in the 17th Century. This gay idea was carried out in banners, music, and the costumes of the strolling venders, dancers, singers, and pages. After the court presentation the annual Senior hoop rolling contest took place amid the cheers of the many onlookers. This brought the formal proceedings to a close and a large smorgasbord was served to the company on tables attractively decorated on the veranda. In the afternoon an informal tea dance was given, followed by the May Day formal dance in Murphy Gymnasium.

Beautiful are those boughs in the lamp-light seen . . .
Upward they soar and bear the stars for fruits
And the clouds of leaves—Are they watery blue? Or green?
Like clouds of moonlight blowing in the darkness above us;
And downward, below this shell of the earth that trembles,
Reaching to stars still farther, go the roots.
How the world sings and shudders and swings about us!
Nothing is stable. We move and the vast web trembles—
One false step and we fall—we fall . . .

THE JUNIOR CLASS OF 1947...

M. Fassett, D. Goodwin, L. Brust, C. Carlin.

Emerging from that "Sophomore Slump" to don that jolly Junior look, we, the class of '47 arose once more to fame in the annual Song Contest. "Sit up and look, here come the Juniors" was our cry, as 70 strong we proudly marched down the aisles in our flashing red and white. For the third time we claimed as ours the cup for honorable mention and drank the coke from this, our favorite silver cup.

To prove that our talent was not limited to singing we bore the burden of Junior breakfast and with finances not quite up to par we sold "coke" weekly throughout the dorms.

Soon we found ourselves at work on Junior Prom. With a desire to make it the best ever, we dragged out our little black books and set to work to make the event a howling success. With all the spirit and determination of our class of '47, we had set our goal high and with a few gentle pushes we attained that goal and made "perfect" and "superb" sound like feeble adjectives.

Having the feeling of a job well done we patted ourselves on the back and began making preparations for the last big event of our Junior year—Junior-Senior Ring Breakfast. Once those rings were on our fingers we felt the bonds of our Junior year were broken, and we were fully prepared to face the grim reality of being stately Seniors.

With Junior Breakfast, Prom, and all the other happy memories of our Junior year to reflect upon, we take our final big step through the portals of knowledge—may our Senior year bring as much fun and joy as our Junior year.

BEAVER

THE SOPHOMORE CLASS OF 1947....

C. Roland, H. Curran, N. Bulkley, P. Curran.

Anxiously the Sophomores returned to Beaver this year to spread far and wide the news that with the class of '48 there would be no such thing as "Sophomore Slump". In fact, we're wondering just what that well-known quotation means. So far, it is an unknown quantity to us. (Let's keep it that way, Sophs!)

"Hail, Ye Sophomores" was our introduction into Song Contest this year, as all 142 of us marched up that unending aisle to show to all, our talent, determination, and spirit.

After many heated discussions, we, at long last, decided on our class colors, navy and light blue. Also we unanimously elected Dr. Cutright as our class advisor; we thank you, Dr. Cutright, for all the help and guidance you have given us.

The Soph Hop proved to be the class of '48's best undertaking. With a good dance orchestra, proper atmosphere, and countless couples, the dance was a great success.

The "gay, glamorous Sophomores" were well represented in all extra-curricular activities. The literary publications found contributions from many '48ers; the Glee Club contained thirty sophomores while the choir had numerous sophomore members.

We, of the Sophomore class, feel that we abound in talent; so keep your eye on the class of '48.

THE FRESHMAN CLASS OF 1949....

New faces, new friends, new places, just about everything new in that first week of our college career. Wide-eyed we stared at the Seniors, and bedraggled we took our first stroll on our own campus. We even looked forward to receiving our green hats.

And then, suddenly, we were new no longer; yet we were greener than ever. With every tip we seemed to make our place at Beaver just a little more secure, and every door we opened and each bed we made served as a reminder that we were at the very bottom of the ladder to our star, to graduation.

We made our debut at the Student-Faculty Reception. We were awed at the splendor of our castle on the other campus, and we were proud to show the faculty that we owned something more than dungarees and green hats.

Our Halloween party was fun, informal and old-fashioned. We combined square dancing with bobbing for apples, and in general, we had fun. We hope you did too!

And at last came the night of nights—and we were green no more! With our knees quaking and our eyes glued to the guiding hand of Peg Houck, we marched into our first Song Contest—and we marched out victorious! We tipped for the last time that night, and for the first time we came into our own as the class of '49. We rang the chapel bell, we drank coke from our cup, and we sang out the story of "the chartreuse worm" until we could sing no more. From now on we shall associate more than turkey with Thanksgiving.

We have completed the first half of our first year at Beaver, but we have not yet begun to live! For three more years we shall make Beaver our home, our friend, and, above all, our alma mater.

ALUMNAE ASSOCIATION

The Beaver College Alumnae Association is your organization and belongs to you, Beaver student! It is your privilege and duty to join after leaving college. Through this Association you may promote the cause of higher education for women; help the College grow; renew old and make new friends. The Alumnae Association helps your college life to remain alive and not become a faded memory. It gives you recognition as a college woman in your vicinity.

The purpose of the Alumnae Association is to further the interests of Beaver College and to foster among the alumnae the spirit of fellowship and service.

Any former student of Beaver College or Beechwood School is eligible for membership.

Active membership in the Association is obtained by contributing to the alumnae drive for funds or by paying dues as the current case may be. Paid members receive the Alumnae Journal, which is published four times a year, and are eligible to vote. A Life Membership in the Association may be secured for $100.

The College Board of Trustees includes two alumnae who are elected by active members. A third is an honorary appointment.

The Alumnae Council, which is composed of officers, committee heads, presidents of regional clubs, and class agents who are the elected representatives of their respective classes, meets at the college four times a year. They plan and direct the program of the Association.

The function of the Alumnae Association office is to maintain records and addresses of Alumnae and to cooperate in the promotion of the activities of the Association.

Regional clubs are maintained throughout the United States.

Reunions are held annually, but this year the reunion will be held for the first time since the war.

The officers are: Acting President, Mrs. Ethel Cunningham McClintock, '39; First Vice-President, Pearl Bastian Titus, '34; Second Vice-President, Linda Lamberti, '34; Recording Secretary, Eleanor Martin Germond, '35; Corresponding Secretary, Mary Mitchell Zimmerman, '36; Treasurer, Ruth Bennis, '37; Journal Editor, Beatrice Boye Talbot, '34, and Executive Secretary, Mrs. Ruth Howells Zurbuchen, '23.

The Alumnae Members of the Board of Trustees of Beaver College are: Mrs. Eleanor McKinnon Emery, '35; Irene Ried, '29, and Mrs. Rose Ingraham Marsh, 1881.

The strength of the Alumnae Association depends upon you and what you give of yourself to it.

Frances Lewis, Publicity Chairman, Class of '39

A Distinctive Yearbook . . .

is the product of the efforts of a capable editor plus the interested cooperation of a seasoned specialist. To an editor, who wishes to make a success of his first publishing venture, specialization offers innumerable advantages that are most helpful—in fact—indispensable.

It is advisable to have a specialist handle your yearbook. Investigate the services of "Campus," an organization whose entire business is college and school publications.
